CT Main Electronics Box. Development status.

Main Electronics Box (MEB) of the EUSO-SPB2 Cherenkov Telescope (CT) contains all electronic components of the CT data acquisition system. It will be mounted in a proximity to the focal plane unit to minimize cable length. Design status of all MEB components will be presented. Parameters of the designed High Voltage Power Supply (HVPS) and thermal constraints will be described. Possible ways to mitigate elevated power dissipation and to achieve optimal performance of the CT working at intense levels of the Night Sky Background will be presented.

Hunting for ANITons with EUSO-SPB2

The ANITA Collaboration has reported the detection of two upward-propagating extensive air showers emerging from well below the horizon with energies ~ 500 PeV. While in principle this type of event has been anticipated as a result of astrophysical τ -neutrinos converting to τ -leptons during Earth passage, the origin of ANITA events remains intriguing because the observed exit angles create a tension with the standard model (SM) neutrino-nucleon interaction cross section. Actually, under conservative extrapolations of SM physics, there is no particle that can propagate through the Earth with a probability $p > 10^{-6}$ at these energies and exit angles. Leaving aside systematic effects that may be at play, any other possible explanation of these exotic events (nicknamed ANITons) would require some kind of new physics beyond the SM. In this talk we will investigate the feasibility to search for ANITons using the the second generation Extreme Universe Space Observatory on a Super-Pressure Balloon (EUSO-SPB2) mission, which has been approved by NASA for a long duration flight in 2022.

Atmospheric Sciences for MiniEUSO experiments, and applications of MiniEUSO for Cloud detection

The real-time weather analysis of physical quantities that could be interesting for MiniEUSO data analysis. Here we discuss the operational chain to retrieve, analyse and plot some atmosphere related quantities that could be associated with the MiniEUSO session data as metadata.

Moreover, we discuss the opportunity to detect cloud pattern and cloud cover directly from the MiniEUSO sensors, and how to test them against different satellite images.

Reconstruction of EAS-like events

One of the most mysterious events measured by the TUS detector are the so-called EAS-like events which are events with a spatio-temporal pattern typical for the EAS fluorescence. Here we present the procedure to reconstruct these events and also discuss their possible origin.
